Thoughts on my work…
During this year, I will be offering very few individual sessions as my diary is increasingly filled with teaching constellation work and work in the creative arts – mostly in film and theatre, which is a delightful and creative place to work.

I am also returning to the single fee system at my workshops. The collective field is of course fundamental to this work, and we respect the power of the process when we work with what is emergent for the group as a whole. Of course, for some there is a challenge in not having a guaranteed space to do their own work – my advice here is always to raise your hand early in the day and if needed we will select names from a hat. For myself, the 2 most important pieces of work I have done in the past 25 years were both as a representative, and so I can trust that we get what we need through this process.

I am so delighted by the widening interest in this work. Each year the diversity of personal and professional backgrounds of participants at workshops and trainings increases. It is wonderful that this lens on life is spreading – may it continue!

Training in Systemic Constellations - Bristol & London
For those who would like to know more about Systemic Constellation philosophy and methodology, the Foundation Training at the Centre for Systemic Constellations is the course for you. This training has been described as "amazing" and "life changing" more times than we can recall. Courses are run in Bristol and London and begin in January and March each year. More details are available HERE.

On-Going Groups
I run two closed groups each year – one monthly evening group in Bruton, and the other is a quarterly group near Taunton. Both begin in September. Do contact me if you would like to be added to the waiting list.
